
Contents

Preface v

1 The Nature of Attitudes 1

Definition of Attitude 1

Attitudes As Tendencies 2

Attitudes As Evaluative 3

Attitude Objects 4

Attitude and Latent Processes 6

The Commonsense Concept of Attitude 8

Research on Inferences about Attitudes 9

The Cognitive, Affective, and Behavioral Analysis of Attitudes 10

Classes of Evaluative Responses 10

Classes of Antecedents of Attitudes 14

Implications of the Cognitive, Affective, and Behavioral Analysis 16

Attitudes As Schemas 18

Attitudes and Motivational Issues 19

Notes 21

2 The Measurement of Attitudes (Samuel Himmelfarb) 23

Basic Concepts and Ideas 23

Measurement 23

Levels of Measurement 23

Representational Measurement 26

Levels of Measurement and Statistics 27

Reliability and Validity of Measurement 28

Errors of Measurement 28

Models of Measurement 29

Attitude Scale Construction: Stimulus, Then Person Scaling 30

Thurstone Judgment Techniques 31

Method of Equal-Appearing Intervals	3	3
Measurement of Respondents' Attitudes	34
Method of Successive Intervals	3	4
Method of Paired Comparisons	39
Item Selection in the Thurstone Techniques	40
Evaluation of Thurstone Judgment Techniques	42
Magnitude Estimation	43
Attitude Scale Construction: Simultaneous Stimulus and Person Scaling		44
Guttman Attitude Scales	46
Properties of Guttman Scales	47
Evaluation of Guttman Scaling	48
Attitude Scale Construction: Person Scaling		51
Likert Scaling	52
Item Analysis	53
Evaluation of Likert Scaling	54
Semantic Differential	55
Item Analysis	56
Evaluation of the Semantic Differential	5	7
Attitude Measures Linked to Specific Indicator Classes		57
Cognitive Indicators	58
Affective Indicators	60
Galvanic Skin Response	60
Pupillary Response	61
Facial Electromyographic Activity	62
Self-Reports of Affect	62
Behavioral Indicators	63
Reliability and Validity of Attitude Measures		64
Reliability	64
Validity	68
Response Distortions	72
Bogus Pipeline	72
Randomized Response Technique	74
Response Sets	76
Context and Other Response Effects	77
Single- Versus Multiple-Item Measures	79
Conclusion	82
Notes	84

3 The Structure of Attitudes and Beliefs 89

INTRA-ATTITUDINAL STRUCTURE 89

Dimensional Representations of Attitude Structure	90
Research Testing the Assumption That Attitudes Have Bipolar Structure	90
Social Judgment Theory and the Dimensional Representation of Attitudes	91
Latitudes of Acceptance, Rejection, and Noncommitment	92
The Articulation of Attitudinal Dimensions	97
Research Questioning Bipolar Dimensional Representations of Attitudes	97
Kerlinger's Research	97
Other Research Relevant to Dimensional Representations	99
Conditions Under Which Attitudinal Structures May Be Dimensional	99
Nondimensional Representations of Attitude Structure	101
Contemporary Associative Network Models	101
Classic Belief-Attitude Models	103
Affect and Behavior Associated with Attitude Objects	104
The Prediction of Attitudes from Beliefs	106
Expectancy-Value Model	106
Early Work of the Michigan Group	107
Fishbein's Development of the Expectancy-Value Model	108
Information Integration Theory	109
Advantages and Disadvantages of Information Integration Approach	110
Questioning of Assumption That People Form Attitudes by Aggregating Their Beliefs	111
Direct Retrieval of Attitudes	111
Category-Based Versus Piecemeal-Based Evaluations	112
The Construction-by-Aspects Principle	113
Recapitulation: Predicting Attitudes from Beliefs	114
Attitudes' Consistency with Beliefs, Affects, and Behaviors	114
Evaluative-Cognitive Consistency	114
Bases of Evaluative- Cognitive Inconsistency	115
Consistency Between Evaluation and Other Attitudinal Responses	117
Evaluative-Behavioral Consistency	117
Evaluative-Affective Consistency	117
The Structure of Beliefs: Belief Complexity	118
Defining Belief Complexity	118
Belief Complexity and the Extremity of Attitudes	120

More Complex Beliefs Can Be Associated with More Moderate Attitudes	120
More Complex Beliefs Can Be Associated with More Moderate or More Extreme Attitudes	120
The Integrative Complexity of Beliefs	121
Integrative Complexity and Attitudinal Extremity	122
Integrative Complexity and Linkages to Values	123
The Structure of Beliefs: Relations Between Beliefs	123
Evaluative Inconsistency between Beliefs: Ambivalence	123
The Ambivalence-Amplification Hypothesis	124
The Origins of Ambivalence in Attitudes' Linkages to Values	125
Other Implications of Holding Ambivalent Beliefs	127
Affective and Behavioral Ambivalence	127
Logical Relations between Beliefs	128
McGuire 's Probabilogical Model	128
Wyer's Version of the Probabilogical Model	129
Empirical Evidence Supporting the Probabilogical Model	130
Concluding Comments on Intra-attitudinal Structure	131
Available and Accessible Structure	131
Summary	132
INTER-ATTITUDINAL STRUCTURE	13 3
Balance Theory	133
Heider's Balance Model	134
Some Extensions of Balance Theory	136
Research Relevant to Balance Theory	137
The Jordan Paradigm	137
Zajonc 's Interpretation of Jordan Paradigm Findings	138
Insko 's Interpretation of Jordan Paradigm Findings	138
Balance As a Conceptual Rule	141
Balance Theory and Intra-attitudinal Structure	142
Balance Theory Reborn within Associative Networks	142
Evaluation of Balance Theory	143
Attitudes and Ideologies	145
Political Attitudes and Ideologies	145
Racial Attitudes and Ideologies	146
The Importance or Involvingness of Attitudes	148
Concluding Comments on Inter-attitudinal Structure	150

Notes 151

4	The Impact of Attitudes on Behaviors	155
	Early Reactions to the View That Attitudes Do Not Predict Behavior	157
	Using Multiple-Act Criteria to Increase Attitude-Behavior Correlations	158
	Using Compatible Measures to Increase Attitude-Behavior Correlations	162
	Analyzing Compatibility in Prior Attitude-Behavior Research	166
	Strong Attitude-Behavior Relations, Despite Incompatibility	166
	Predicting Behaviors from Attitudes toward Behaviors	167
	Theory of Reasoned Action	168
	Determinants of Attitudes Toward Behaviors	169
	Determinants of Subjective Norms	171
	Theory of Reasoned Action As a Model of Volitional Behavior	172
	Theory of Reasoned Action As a Model of Cognitive Processes	173
	Some Complexities in Applying the Theory of Reasoned Action	174
	Empirical Tests of the Theory of Reasoned Action	175
	Criticisms of the Theory of Reasoned Action and Proposals of Variant Models	177
	Perceived Moral Obligation and Self-Identity As Omissions from the Reasoned Action Model	177
	Past Behavior or Habit As Omissions from the Reasoned Action Model	178
	Triandis 's Model	180
	Bentler and Speckart's Test of Their Extended Models	180
	Other Studies Examining Past Behavior	181
	Scripted Behavior	182
	The Reasoned Action Model's Difficulties in Predicting Behaviors That Require Resources, Cooperation, and Skills	182
	Expectancies Versus Plans	184
	Questioning the Reasoned Action Model's Assumption That Intention Necessarily Mediates the Influence of Attitude on Behavior	185
	Concerns about the Direction of Causation in the Reasoned Action Model	185
	Beyond Reasoned Action: Theory of Planned Behavior and Other Variants	186
	Theory of Planned Behavior	186
	Other Approaches to Understanding Goal-Oriented Behavior	190
	Theory of Goal Pursuit	190
	The Importance of Planning	191
	What about Attitudes toward Targets?	192

Predicting Behavior from Attitudes toward Targets	193
Past Behavioral Experience with the Attitude Object As a Determinant of Attitude-Behavior Consistency	194
Explanations for the Effect of Direct Experience on Attitude-Behavior Consistency	195
Clarity, Confidence, and Certainty	195
Accessibility and Strength	195
Automatic Activation of Attitudes	197
Generality of the Automaticity Effect	198
Other Explanations for the Effects of Direct Experience and Repeated Expression	199
Attitude Stability As a Mediator of Direct Experience Effects	199
Possible Mediators of the Effects of Repeated Expression	200
Prior Knowledge about the Attitude Object As a Determinant of Attitude-Behavior Consistency	200
Summary of Research on Potential Mediators of Attitude-Behavior Correspondence	201
The Processes by Which Attitudes Toward Targets Affect Behavior	202
Research on the Perceived Relevance of Attitudes to Behavior	206
A Composite Model of the Attitude-Behavior Relation	209
Introspection about Attitudes toward Targets as a Determinant of Attitude-Behavior Consistency	212
Limitations of Research on Attitudes toward Targets	215
Conclusion	216
Notes	217

5 Combinatorial Models of Attitude Formation and Change 219

Probabilogical Model	221
Implications of the Probabilogical Model for Predicting Belief Change	223
Bayes's Theorem	225
The Socratic Effect	226
Implications and Extensions of the Probabilogical Model	228
The Separate Prediction of Evaluative and Likelihood Judgments	229
The Utility of the Probabilogical Model As a Theory of Persuasion	230
Expectancy-Value Model	231
Correlational Research Relevant to Expectancy-Value Model	232
TM? Adequacy of Expectancy-Value Products for Modeling Beliefs	234
Expectancy-Value Model As a Theory of Persuasion	236
Strategies for Constructing Persuasive Messages	237

The Acceptance- Yielding-Impact Model of Persuasion	238
Evaluation of Expectancy-Value Model As a Theory of Persuasion	239

Information Integration Theory	241
Applications of Information Integration Theory to Attitude Change	242
Functional Measurement and Parallelism Prediction	242
Set-Size Effect	245
Interactions between Recipient Variables and Source or Message Variables	246
Communicator Credibility Effects	247
Relation of Information Integration Theory to Process Theories of Persuasion	250
Evaluation of Information Integration Theory	252
Evaluation of Combinatorial Theories	253
Notes	256

6 Process Theories of Attitude Formation and Change: Reception and Cognitive Responding 257

McGuire's Information-Processing Paradigm	259
The Reception- Yielding Model	261
Empirical Evidence That Reception Mediates Persuasion	264
Illustrative Research	264
The Covariation Paradox	268
Manipulating Reception and Amount of Argumentation	272
Distal Persuasion Variables and Reception	21A
Individual Differences in Persuasibility	276
Summary	278
New Directions in Investigating Reception	278
Cognitive Response Model	280
Relation to Combinatorial Models	282
Relation to Reception	282
Empirical Evidence Supporting Cognitive Response Model	283
Message Repetition	286
Issue Involvement	287
Other Distal Variables	289
Evaluation of Cognitive Response Model and Research	291
Assessing Cognitive Responses	293
Message Reception and Cognitive Elaboration	296
Summary	297

Postscript: Wyer's Process-Theory Extension of the Probabilistic Model 297

Notes 300

7 Process Theories of Attitude Formation and Change: The Elaboration Likelihood and Heuristic-Systematic Models 305

Elaboration Likelihood Model 305

Three Ways to Influence Attitudes 309

Argument Quality 309

Role of Argument Quality in Tests of the Model 311

Empirical Findings 314

Objective versus Biased Processing 315

Peripheral Cue Effects 317

Consequences of Elaboration 318

Variables That Serve Multiple Roles 319

Evaluation of the Elaboration Likelihood Model 320

Underlying Psychological Mechanisms 322

Interpretation of Argument Quality 324

Heuristic-Systematic Model 326

Two Concurrent Modes of Judging Message Validity 326

Cognitive Determinants of Processing Mode 328

Motivational Determinants of Processing Mode 330

Empirical Findings 333

Accessibility and Reliability of Heuristics 333

Interaction and Additivity Effects 336

Multiple-Motive Heuristic-Systematic Model 339

Evaluation of the Heuristic-Systematic Model 342

Summary 345

Notes 347

8 Process Theories of Attitude Formation and Change: Attribution Approaches and Social Judgment Theory 351

Attribution Approaches 351

Fulfillment of Consensus, Consistency, and Distinctiveness Criteria 353

Multiple Observations 353

Single Observations 353

Multiple Plausible Causes and Message Persuasiveness 355

Theory of Correspondent Inferences 360

Evaluation of Attribution Perspective 362

Social Judgment Theory	363
Assimilation and Contrast	366
Attitudes As Judgmental Anchors	367
Explaining Attitude Change	368
Role of Ego-Involvement	369
Empirical Predictions and Illustrative Findings	371
Effects of Message Discrepancy	373
Ego-Involvement	375
Evaluation of Social Judgment Theory	379

Epilogue	382
-----------------	-----

Notes	386
--------------	-----

9 Affective Processes in Attitude Formation and Change: Conditioning and Mere Exposure Research 389

Introduction: The Cognitive Revolution and Affect in Social Psychology	389
--	-----

Operant and Classical Conditioning Studies of Attitude Formation 392

Operant Conditioning of Attitudes	395
Mediational Issues	396
Summary and Conclusions	398
Classical Conditioning of Attitudes	399
Primary Conditioning Studies	400
Higher-Order Conditioning Studies	400
Applications of Conditioning Logic	402
Mediational Issues	403
Summary and Conclusions	409

Mere Exposure and Attitude Formation 412

Stimulus Recognition and Mere Exposure	414
Theoretical Accounts of Mere Exposure Effects	416
Pre-1980s Interpretations of Exposure Effects	411
Is Mere Exposure an Affective or Cognitive Phenomenon?	419
New Directions in Theorizing about Mere Exposure	420

Conclusions	421
--------------------	-----

Notes	425
--------------	-----

10 Motivational Processes in Attitude Formation and Change 427

Yale Reinforcement Perspective	428
---------------------------------------	-----

Role of Incentives	429
Incentives and Communicator Variables	429
Incentives and Counterattitudinal Advocacy	430
Emotion and Persuasion	431
Drive-Reduction Model of Fear Appeals	432
The Dental Hygiene Experiment	433
Extensions of the Drive-Reduction Model	436
The Parallel Response Model and the Demise of Fear in Theories of Fear Appeals	440
State of the Empirical Literature	442
Back to the Future	446
Positive Affect and Persuasion	447
Mood and Magnitude of Systematic Processing	448
Capacity and Motivational Interpretations of Mood Effects	450
Additional Mechanisms by Which Mood May Affect Persuasion	451
Summary and Conclusions	454
Theories of Cognitive Consistency	455
Balance Theory and Related Formulations	456
Strain-Toward-Symmetry Model	459
Congruity Theory	460
Evaluative-Cognitive Consistency Theory	462
The Microprocesses of Inconsistency Reduction	467
Dissonance Theory	469
Essence of the Theory	470
Involuntary Exposure to Attitude-Discrepant Information	473
Effects of Counterattitudinal Advocacy	474
Cognitive and Attitudinal Consequences of Decision Making	416
Selective Exposure	478
Functional Approach to Attitudes and Their Change	479
Classic Conceptions of Attitude Functions	479
Contemporary Conceptions and Research	482
Conceptions	482
Research	485
Conclusion	490
Notes	493
11 The Impact of Behavior on Attitude Formation and Change	499
Role-Playing and Attitude Change	500

Cognitive Dissonance and Counterattitudinal Advocacy	505
Classic Period of Dissonance Research	505
The Festinger and Carlsmith (1959) Experiment	507
Criticisms of the Induced Compliance Paradigm	508
The Dissonance Effect in Alternative Paradigms	509
Evolution of Dissonance Theory	511
Freedom of Choice	511
Commitment	512
Aversive Consequences	514
Personal Responsibility	515
Conjunction of Conditions That Produce the Dissonance Effect	515
Attitude Change Without Responsibility for Aversive Consequences	520
Self-Identity and Self-Presentation Interpretations of the Effects of Induced Compliance	522
Self-Concept Interpretations	522
Moral and Hedonic Dissonance	523
Self-Presentation Interpretations	524
Impression Management View	524
Identity-Analytic View	529
Evaluation of Self-Presentation Views	531
Effects of Self-Affirmation	532
Evaluation of Dissonance and Self Theories	534
Self-Perception Theory	538
Interpersonal Simulations of Dissonance Experiments	540
Other Evidence Favoring Self-Perception Theory	542
The Truth Light—Lie Light Experiments	542
Overjustifkanòn Effects and Proattitudinal Behavior	543
Conditions under which Self-Perception Effects Occur	545
Role of Arousal in Self-Perception and Dissonance Theories	547
Evaluation of Self-Perception Theory	551
The Effects of Behavior on Attitudes: A Reprise	552
Notes	555
12 Resistance and Persistence Processes in Attitude Change	559
Inoculation Theory	561
Inoculation Research Paradigm	562
Cognitive and Motivational Bases of Resistance	563

Evaluation of Inoculation Theory	565
Other Treatments That Produce Resistance to Persuasion	566
Reflections on Inoculation Theory	567
Two Motivational Theories of Resistance	568
Resistance to Preserve Freedom	568
Impression Management Interpretation of Reactance Effects	571
Reflections on Reactance Theory	573
Personality Bases of Resistance	574
Authoritarian Personality Study	574
Ego Defense and Resistance	576
Other Personality Variables and Resistance	578
Attitude Strength and Resistance	580
Attitude Strength As a Motivational Determinant of Resistance	580
Latitude of Rejection	582
Commitment	582
Attitude Strength As a Cognitive Determinant of Resistance	584
Evaluative-Cognitive Consistency	587
Multifaceted Nature of Attitude Strength	588
Processes by which People Protect Strong Attitudes	589
Impact of Attitudes on Information Processing	589
Attitudinal Selectivity	590
Selective Exposure and Attention	591
Selective Perception and Judgment	595
Selective Memory	599
Some Final Comments on Attitudinal Selectivity	604
Thought and the Polarization of Attitudes	604
Reflections on Attitudinal Selectivity and Polarization	607
Theories of the Persistence of Changed Attitudes	608
Associative Interference	608
Discounting Cues and Research on the Sleeper Effect	612
Other Determinants of Attitudinal Persistence	619
Delayed Impact of Attitude Change on Related Cognitions	619
Persistence Induced by Systematic Processing	620
Other Considerations	620
Conclusion	621
Notes	623

 13 The Social Context of Attitude Formation and Change 627

Normative and Informational Influence	628
Importance of Social Norms	630
Continued Importance of Concepts of Normative and Informational Influence	632
Public Compliance and Private Acceptance	632
Public Compliance and Private Acceptance in Attitude Change Research	633
Social Influence in Dyadic Relationships	634
French and Raven's Typology of Types of Power	634
Milgram's Obedience Paradigm	636
Kelman's Typology of Types of Social Influence	638
Other Typologies of Power and Influence	641
Social Influence in Groups	642
Further Research on Conformity	642
Additional Evidence for the Normative and Informational Origins of Conformity	643
Cognitive Mediation of Conformity	644
Minority Influence	646
Mediation by Attributional Processes	647
Dual-process Views of Mediation	649
Divergent Thinking	651
Relation of Moscovici's Viewpoint to Other Dual-Process Theories	652
Single-Process Interpretations of Majority and Minority Influence	653
Group Polarization	655
Normative Processes	656
Informational Processes	658
Evidence for Normative and Informational Processes	658
Conclusion	659
Notes	662

 14 Future Directions in the Study of Attitudes 665

Overview of Systematic Knowledge about Attitudes	666
Definition and Measurement	666
Attitude Structure	668
Attitude-Behavior Relation	670

Attitude Change	671
Simple Affective Processes	672
Persuasion	673
Impact of Behavior on Attitude Formation and Change	676
Social Influence	678
Resistance and Persistence Processes	679
General Issues: Some More Troubling than Others	681
Serious Omissions and Limitations	681
Lack of Attention to the Developmental Issue of How Attitudes Are Formed and Become Strong	681
Insufficient Consideration of the Social Context of Attitudes	682
Constraints Inherent in Laboratory Experimentation	684
Lack of a Strongly Cumulative Research Tradition	687
Growth of Attitude Theories	692
Applications of Attitude Theories	695
References	697
Subject Index	769
Author Index	780