

CONTENTS

List of figures	xii
Acknowledgments	xiii
1 What We Mean When We Talk About the Ancient Near East	1
Timeline	9
Map of the Ancient Near East	10
2 The Early Millennia	12
Agriculture—from the hilly flanks to the river valleys	16
Cities—life on the plains	21
City states—patriotism of the small state	22
Territorial empires—the four quarters united	25
Kings and temples—co-optation of the gods	30
Pyramids and ziggurats—monuments for the ages	32
Royal ideologies—gods or not	38
The state as protector of the poor—legislating morality	39
3 The Second Millennium: Foreigners and New Orders	42
The Hittite solar system	52
The king as rainmaker, the king as human	56

4	The First Millennium: Worldwide States	62
	The small states—innovation by combination	65
	Religious change on the edges	69
	Perils of empire—deportations and identity	72
	The worldwide states—Persians and Greeks	76
	The fading of the Ancient Near East—ruralization of everyday life	83
	The persistence of the Ancient Near East—the cities and the markets	85
5	Literature	88
6	Art	96
7	Legacies	104
	Domestication of plants and animals	104
	Pottery	104
	The wheel	105
	Literacy	105
	Accounting	106
	Coinage	107
	Science	108
	Astronomy, astrology	111
	The school	112
	City life	113
	Political legacies	113
	Art	115
	Religious ideas	116
8	The Rediscovery of the Ancient Near East	119
	The Abbé and the Palmyrenes	120
	Champollion and Egypt	122
	Hincks in his study	124
	The ancient world exposed—from flood story to Bible and Babel	126
	The ancient world used—Biblical archaeology	128
	Conceptual autonomy	129

	History as imperialism	130
	History as reconciliation	132
9	Limits of the Future	136
	Philology as queen of the sciences	136
	History today	141
	Glossary	145
	Further Reading	153
	Index	157